PARK ASSOCIATION FORMED LAST NIGHT.

Meeting Resulted in Thorough Discussion of Project—Election of Directors is Postponed

At a meeting of the people interested in the public park held last night in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce the Connellsville Park and Play Ground Association was formed A constitution which provides for the election of nine directors, who shall conduct all financial and business actions of the organization was adopted Three of these directors are elected to serve until the first Tuesday of January 1909 three shall serve for the further period of one year and the remaining three shall serve for the further period of two years Elections shall be held on the first Tuesday of January of each year when three directors shall be elected for a period of three years

A full report of the committee appointed at the last meeting to investigate alleged nuisances that were said to exist in the park site was heard The report showed that whatever nuisances do exist can with a little expenditure be easily abated in a short time There are two or three barns on the site but these will be torn down in the event of the park being established

After some discussion it was decided that it would be the best policy to postpone the election of the directors until a larger number of members should be enrolled Membership in the association will cost one dollar as a minimum and as much more as the member feels that his interest in the project and his financial circumstances will justify Several subscriptions have been promised with the probability of more in a few days

Peter D Smith and Mary Roland the French couple who want to get married and can't have entered into an agreement whereby Smith is to continue at his work supporting the woman and her family and in the meantime a divorce is to be sought by the woman after securing which Smith is to marry her There didn't seem to be any better way out of the difficulty Justice Miller could not see the advisability of sending the man to jail on a charge preferred by the woman and then sending the family to the County Home and adding costs upon the county Besides the woman did not want to have the man sent to jail

So it was mutually decided that both of them should write letters the wife a letter to her home and secure the date of her marriage and any information of her husband that could be had and the man a letter to his father to secure $100 to carry on the divorce proceedings

When Smith was released from the police station this morning he was not as happy as his wife although he danced a little jig Both went away happy helping to carry a basket of vegetables between them Smith said he was going straight to work and would take good care of the woman

SURPRISED HIM.

Forethought of a Pittsburg Woman Brings Joy to Her Husband

An iron worker in Pittsburg who had made big wages for several years lost his job the other day by the closing of the mill. He had saved nothing and he felt pretty blue until his wife surprised him by producing a savings bank book showing that she had over $600 on deposit. Her thrift saved the family from want. Wives and daughters should be willing to do without some luxuries in order to maintain a savings account, which may be the salvation of the family in time of trouble. The First National Bank of Connellsville welcomes the accounts of women—has a special room for their convenience. Pays 4 per cent interest.

WIFE OF MISSING DOCTOR LIBERATED.

Released on Bail on Charge of Aiding Her Husband to Elude Officer.

Mrs Helen W Rockwell, wife of Dr L S Rockwell, who was arrested yesterday charged with aiding and abetting the escape of her husband from an officer, was released from the borough lockup last night about 10 o'clock, Lyons Morgan of Uniontown appearing and furnishing $500 bail bond, fixed by Magistrate W P Clark.

Constable Harshman, from whom Dr Rockwell, who was under commitment to jail on a serious charge preferred by the father of Maggie Wilson of Vanderbilt, escaped, stated at a hearing that Mrs Rockwell and her husband acted suspiciously all the night that he was at the Rockwell home on North Pittsburg street. They held conferences frequently and Dr Rockwell got up several times during the night to converse with his wife.

He alleged that Mrs Rockwell secured her husband's coat and hat for him when he made his escape in addition to providing other means of assisting him. Mrs Rockwell has made no statement but her appearance gives rise to the general opinion that she took it for granted that she had a right to help her hubby.

After being released from the police station last night she immediately went to Uniontown where she has a sister residing. The officers have secured no clue as to the whereabouts of Dr Rockwell.

CYPHER TO REPRESENT EAGLES AT SEATTLE.

New Haven Man Elected a Delegate to the National Convention in August

At the regular meeting of the Fraternal Order of Eagles last night Edgar Cypher of New Haven was elected delegate to the National Convention at Seattle August 31. Clarence W Brooks was elected alternate delegate. Owing to the great distance to be traveled and the time that it requires to make the trip it is not probable that many of the local members of the order will attend. In former years Connellsville has sent large delegations but many feel this year that they cannot afford to give up the time to make the long and expensive journey.

NERVES

Puzzle many people because they don't know what the nerves are for and how they work. The fact is the nerves are a very important part of the body and are more useful than people imagine. Without good nerves the body is sick, and good nerves simply mean Nature's perfect signal system installed in the body to keep it in good working operation.

Now, there comes times when every system works badly. The signals fail to respond. It's exactly like an electric signal that is out of order. You press the button, but there is no ring. So the liver and the kidneys ring up the motor centers and signal that they are ready to pass on their contents in the way Nature intended. If there is any sluggishness or atrophy or congestion of those organs there is no answer, or only a feeble response. The result is that the body suffers in many parts.

The liver and kidneys become torpid. The bile and uric acid are thrown back into the blood. When these are carried back through the system the skin becomes yellow, there is a pain in the right side and under the shoulder blades. A dull, heavy sleepy feeling overspreads the body. This condition is often called a disease of the nerves. But the nerves are not to blame at all. They cannot act when the liver and kidneys are clogged. That's all.

Now, a medicine that will set the signals right and get the great organs, the liver and the kidneys, which have most to do with cleansing the body, to work, is a good medicine. CANN'S KIDNEY REMEDY will do it. It acts directly upon these organs and gives them just the stimulation they need. They work a little faster until the clogged condition disappears and the body, like a telephone system, is in normal working order once more.

For sale by all Druggists.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving and Some Connellsville People Know How to Save It

Many Connellsville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases, aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Connellsville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs Frank Bechtel, 294 E Fairview avenue, Connellsville, Pa, says: "Mr Bechtel suffered from kidney disease for years and was growing worse every year. He complained a great deal of severe pains in the back and loins which were accompanied by rheumatic attacks. The action of the kidneys was irregular and the secretions plainly showed by their color that his kidneys needed toning up. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended he procured a box at Graham & Co's drug store and began taking them. He soon felt much better, the pains ceased and the kidney action was regulated. Today he is without a symptom of kidney trouble and gives the credit of his cure to Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co, Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

AUTHORITIES THINK THEY HAVE MURDERERS

Information Received by Somerset Officers That Arrests Have Been Made in Westmoreland Co.

SOMERSET, Pa., June 24.—Joe Spino and his wife of Arbotla, of a near by lumber camp, who murdered Filipo Cordi and mortally wounded Joe Radi on Sunday afternoon, are still at large. Five foreigners are under arrest at Windber and will be held there until the authorities are satisfied that none of them are accessories to the crime. It is likely that several of these foreigners will be held as witnesses.

The authorities at Ligonier, Westmoreland county, today notified Sheriff William C. Begley that two foreigners, believed to be Spino and his wife, were under arrest at that place. Constable S. W. McMullin of Windber and a posse spent yesterday scouring the vicinity, but no traces of the Spinos could be found. After killing Cordi the Spinos pursued Radi for half a mile down the railroad, and after overtaking him shot him in the shoulder with a shot gun.

Radi, who together with Cordi, boarded at the Spinos, was thrumming on a guitar Sunday morning. Mrs. Spino came into the room and inquired why he was playing on Sunday. Radi replied and Mrs. Spino attacked him, stabbing him in the abdomen with a dirk. Filipino Cordi interfered and Joe Spino rushed into the room and blew Cordi's head off with a shot gun. Radi took to his heels and the Spinos pursued him and finally overtook and shot him.

PYTHIANS CANNOT GET STATE CANVASS.

Adjutant General Unable to Grant Request for Tentage to the Lodgemen.

The Knights of Pythias cannot be accommodated with the loan of tents from the National Guard at its convention to be held here in August. Col. J. M. Reid is in receipt of a letter from Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, in which the refusal of the loan of tents is made known as well as the reasons therefore. The reasons explicitly stated are as follows:

"I am in receipt of yours enclosing communications of O. B. Purinton and W. C. Armstrong to you, both of Connellsville and both communications relating to the loan of tentage by the State for the annual convention of the Knights of Pythias of Pennsylvania, to be held in Connellsville August 19-22, next and stating further that they desire to have the use at that time of 400 wall tents. To this I beg to reply as follows:

1. There is no authority of law by which the Governor or Adjutant General can make loan of canvas belonging to the State for the purpose indicated.

2. This character of loan was made some years ago, but not recently. The requests for loan of canvas for every conceivable purpose came in such large numbers to the Adjutant General's office that to have complied with but a portion of the requests received, would have necessitated the loaning of the canvas of the State to such an extent that there would have been no canvas left in the State Arsenal, but it would have been continually in use all over the State for various purposes. This being the case the Military Board, by action taken in May, 1904, and which action was published in G. O. No. 17 of that year, copy enclosed herewith decided that State property must not be loaned to any one for any purpose."

3. As indicated above the Adjutant General is without authority to make the loan suggested in the communications which you enclosed to this office, and which are herewith returned to you. I regret exceedingly that I am unable to comply, not only with your request but of the gentlemen who addressed you on the subject.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, JUNE 24, 1908

THE PASSING OF A GREAT PRESIDENT.

In the death of Grover Cleveland, twice President of the United States and the only Democrat who has filled that office in half a century, the country has lost a statesman and a patriot who would have ranked high with the Fathers of the Republic for his force of character, his rugged honesty and his unwavering courage in meeting and dealing with all public questions

In the councils of the nation there have been other men more brilliant, but not more patriotic, more dashing, but not more brave, more dexterous, but not more forceful, more fortunate, but not more earnest, more successful, but not ruled by a rectitude so uniformly conscious and immovable

In 1888, at the close of his first term, he deliberately sacrificed his ambitions to what he regarded as his duty in the treatment of the tariff question repeating in action the words of Henry Clay, 'I would rather be right than President"

Grover Cleveland was no politician He was a man of, by and for the people, and it was the voice of the people that said "We love him for the enemies he has made '

He closed an honorable career under clouds of panic and distress with their attendant kicks and curses, but the judgment of time will place him high among those who earnestly strove to serve his country with zealous patriotism and who so served it faithfully and well

GREAT ARCHITECTS BUT BAD BUILDERS.

We are advised by that ancient and once respected Democratic organ the Uniontown Genius, that the Democrats are "planning to capture the next House"

There is, however nothing new nor startling in this information The Democrats have been planning the same plans for many years past but never since 1896, when Democracy became only a name, have these plans rested on any more substantial foundation than the vainest of hopes

The best laid plans of Bryanism have gang agley and every four years they gang further and further agley, but that does not prevent the architects of the party from planning again

That's all there is left for them to do They are carrying such a heavy load of Bryan that they can't carry anything else

Whatever may be said by the Buster Bryans about the Republican party the fact remains that it is so immeasurably superior to all its opposition that no sensible voter who loves his bread and butter can be induced to take any chances on a change that is so evidently for worse and not for better

In the meantime, however, the Popocrats will not be molested in their planning They are Great Architects but Bad Builders

ENFORCE THE LAW AND AVOID HYDROPHOBIA.

The hot weather has developed a mad dog in the Southern end of the county and there may be more to follow before the hot season is over It behooves the authorities to keep vigilant watch and the citizens to take no chances The death of a man in Pittsburg a few days ago, and a similar horrible occurrence a few weeks ago in Brooklyn suggest that the use of the muzzle be enforced this summer Muzzled dogs can't bite man or beast

One of the cautions given out by the Pasteur Institute of Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg is that every person suffering from dog bite should at once apply to the hospital for examination and preliminary treatment, and that the guilty animal should be kept carefully confined for at least two weeks Scientific examination it was declared, has established that if the animal inflicting the bite has true hydrophobia it will, if kept in confinement die within a few days

To avoid any possibility of doubt the pathological department of Mercy Hospital fixes a limit of two weeks during which the dog shall be isolated If it does not die in that time there is scarcely a possibility of its being afflicted with rabies and the person bitten is in no danger except from infection that might result in blood poison

Mad dog scares are useless but mad dog precautions are sane and safe Hydrophobia is on the increase in spite of science, possibly because there are too many skeptical persons Owneless dogs should be painlessly eliminated We have too many canines If we had fewer dogs, we might have more sheep

The public interest and the public safety demand a strict enforcement of the laws concerning muzzles and tags

A NECESSARY AND PROPER RULING

The ruling of the Military Board forbidding the loan of tents or other equipment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania to any persons outside of the service is a wise necessary and proper ruling

The practise which prevailed in former years of lending military tents became so general that the equipment was scattered all over the State most of the time and all of every summer, leaving the Guard unsheltered and unequipped when called out for emergency service Necessity as well as propriety demanded the adoption of the rule mentioned

There is but one exception to this rule In times of great public calamity which have made people homeless and suffering, as for example the Johnstown flood, both tentage and rations have been generously issued by the State on the order of the Governor

Nobody will object to the exception

THE PARK PROPOSITION BEFORE THE PEOPLE

The Park proposition is now formally before the people of Connellsville and every public spirited citizen should contribute according to his means to the proposition

It is an investment in good health for our children as well as ourselves and if the borough finances warranted the issue of additional bonds we would say that the future generations should help to bear the cost but there can be no further bond issues in Connellsville for some time hence the necessity of personal contributions

These are solicited in the form of memberships in the association and until the enrollment has been liberal the committee has very wisely determined that the election of officers and managers shall be postponed

The park should be in the hands of its friends

The shilly shally, willy nilly, maybe may organ otherwise known as The News reproduces its celebrated editorial effort of several months ago anent the Borough Solicitorship in which it sought to prove that may means shall in certain cases with a view to strengthening its present contention that may actually means 'may ' In the meantime we may point out the fact that Borough Solicitor Goldsmith is still holding down his job in spite of our contemporary's famous edict THOU SHALT NOT It's too hot to follow the devious windings of the unartful dodger It's sufficient to say that we believe as a general rule may means may and shall means shall If in law they are construed as meaning anything else we will let The News and the lawyers fight it out

NEWS OF DAY IN SCOTTDALE.

The Borough Lockup Was Filled With Prisoners Tuesday.

FOUR FOR TRAIN JUMPING.

Two More Were In for Fighting, Making More Than Have Been In at One Time for Months—Crazy Man at Alverton.

SCOTTDALE, June 24.—Influenced possibly by the heat, John Pogrist of Everson and August Gildeross of Kifertown engaged in a battle at plant C of the pipe mill Tuesday afternoon and later came together down on Bridge street, where they were both arrested by Chief Frank McCudden and put to swelter in the borough cage along with four negroes arrested in the morning. In the evening the two were given a hearing before the Burgess. Pogrist, who is a Polish lad, had the front of his shirt removed without taking the balance of the garment off. He explained he was afraid the other fellow was also going to have him arrested and got mixed up with him. Each admitted the charge of fighting and were sentenced to pay a fine of $3. The four negroes were then brought forth. They said they were Samuel Paul of Youngstown, O., Sam Rush of Richmond, Va., James Plummer of Portsmouth, Va., and Robert Wyman of Malison, Va. They were brought in during the morning by Chief Frank McCudden who chased them out at the edge of town and then caught them later in a box car in town. Detective John Detemple also looked them over in the cage. They all admitted they had been stealing a ride. They were left in the cage over night and turned loose this morning with a warning to move on.

Rural Carriers' Meeting.

G. L. Graft and Allan Porter, the rural carriers out of Scottdale, have received invitations to be present at the meeting of the County Association which will be held at Greensburg at the Keystone hotel on Saturday, at which time delegates will be elected at the State Convention.

Heat Was Very Oppressive.

Tuesday proved another day of terrific heat and everyone suffered more or less from it. Coatless and hatless men were to be seen on the streets during the day and until late at night, seeking some comfort. The soda fountains bubbled enticingly and the beer parlors had some increase in business. In the rolling mill was the hottest spot about here, and many of the workmen were about played out, some of them being compelled to quit.

Trying the Fish.

Joseph T. Randle, Superintendent of the Citizens Water Company, and Thomas H. Rutherford, agent of The Courier, went to Spruce creek in the former's buggy Tuesday afternoon to seek some pleasure with the fish. As they are well acquainted with that section they should find some places full of fish.

Caught a Crazy Man.

Several calls from Alverton on Tuesday resulted in Chief of Police McCudden and Constable T. J. Gillespie going up there last night and capturing a man that is apparently demented and who was wandering about the village and making threatening demonstrations during the day. When the officers found him he was sitting beside a coke oven. He told several stories that he was Trauger and that he was from Hecla. After being left in the lockup over night he was taken before Justice H. C. Hubbs and after a doctor examined him was sent to the County Home. He is a Pole and his name he could not make intelligible.

NEGLECT COST $10.

Failure to Place Revenue Stamps on Deed Was Expensive.

SOMERSET, Pa., June 23.—Yesterday Hiram Musselman nd Frances, his wife, of Scalp Level, Paint township, brought a deed into the office of Recorder J. R. Boose and requested him to place the same on record. The deed was dated June 30, 1899, and at that time, as is well known, the Spanish-American War was in progress. In order to increase the revenue of the country, a special tax was laid on certain things, and it was compulsory to place stamps on certain articles, among them conveyances of property.

This deed was made by Mr. nd Mrs. Musselman and was not stamped and was therefore invalid. After some discussion it was finally decided to send the imperfect deed to the Revenue Department at Washington where the imperfection might be rectified. At Washington the deed was stamped, $1.50 being the amount of stamps required, but when it was returned it was accompanied by a bill for $10, the legal penalty for neglect in properly stamping conveyances.

The deed conveyed to Willis Rodgers of Paint township a tract of land containing seven acres and 16 perches of land in Paint township in consideration of the payment of $1,300. It is stated that many of the deeds made about the time of the Spanish-American War were not properly stamped, and that as a result many titles may be damaged.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND DEAD.

to the support of his widowed mother, who died in 1882.

He was appointed Assistant District Attorney of Erie county in 1863 and held the office for three years. At this time efforts were being made to bring the Civil War to a close. Two of Cleveland's brothers were in the army, and his mother and sister were dependent largely upon him for support. Unable to enlist, he borrowed money to send a substitute, and it was not until long after the war that he was able to repay the loan. In 1865, at the age of 28, he was the Democratic candidate for District Attorney, but was defeated by the Republican candidate, his intimate friend, Lyman K. Bass. He then became a law partner of Osaac V. Vanderpool, and in 1869 became a member of the firm of Lanning, Cleveland & Folsom. He continued a successful practise until 1870, when he was elected Sheriff of Erie county. At the expiration of his three years' term he formed a law partnership with his personal friend and political antagonist, Lyman K. Bass, the firm being Bass, Cleveland & Bissell, and, after the forced retirement from failing health of Mr. Bass, the firm name was changed to Cleveland & Bissell. The firm was prosperous and Cleveland attained high rank as a lawyer, noted for the simplicity and directness of his logic and expression and thorough mastery of his cases.

In the autumn of 1881 he was nominated Democratic candidate for Mayor of Buffalo and was elected by a majority of 3,530, the largest ever given to a candidate in that city. In the same election a Republican State ticket was carried in Buffalo by an average majority of over 1,600, but Cleveland had a partial Republican, independent and "reform" movement support. He soon became known as the "veto mayor," using that prerogative fearlessly in checking public expenditures that he deemed unwise, illegal or extravagant. The reformed methods of administering the city's affairs, instituted by him while Mayor, led to his election in the following year as Governor of the State of New York by a majority of 192,000 votes over his opponent, Judge Folger, the Republican Secretary of the United States Treasury. All the traits of assidious industry, unostentatious dignity, thoroughness and simplicity acted in Mr. Cleveland's early career were observable during his stay in Albany. His phenomenal success in the Gubernatorial election, as indicative of the probability of carrying New York and of attracting the independent vote, secured him the Democratic nomination for the Presidency in 1884. It has been said that Mr. Cleveland was a reluctant candidate. His friends had more consultation with him on the subject, but he uniformly discouraged rather than favored the movement. It was Mr. Manning, who served during part of Cleveland's first term as Secretary of the Treasury, who commanded the battle that resulted in Mr. Cleveland's nomination. The Democrats had not elected a President since the success of the Republican party in 1860. Mr. Cleveland regarded the contest as doubtful at best, and had little inclination to round out a successful career with a national defeat. He had never been intimate with the Democratic leaders of national fame, had traveled but little, and had the greatest aversion to anything like ornamental parading in politics.

Cleveland's nomination in Chicago was accomplished against the most aggressive opposition of Tammany Hall, led by the veteran John Kelly. Tammany was in absolute control of the City of New York, where it required nearly 100,000 Democratic majority to give the electoral vote of the State to a Democratic candidate. But Manning and his associates compelled Tammany to sumbit to have its votes in the convention cast for Cleveland under the unit rule. The result was that Cleveland was nominated to make the fight against James G. Blaine, the Republican candidate. In the November election the popular vote cast for Mr. Cleveland was 4,911,017 as against 4,843,334 cast for Mr. Blaine.

Cleveland's first administration was marked by general prosperity, by the admission of four new States, Washington, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota, to the Union, and by a freer use of the veto power than generally had been exercised by other Presidents. On the meeting of Congress, in December, 1887, he devoted his annual message mainly to the reduction in tariff duties in order to prevent the further increase in the surplus of the U. S. Treasury. This message occasioned a prolonged discussion of the principles of protection, and furnished the issue in the national political campaign of 1888, when Mr. Cleveland was renominated by the Democrats and Benjamin Harrison was chosen as the Republican candidate. Although the former received a popular majority larger than he had in 1884, the latter had the greatest number of electoral votes, and accordingly, on March 4, 1889, Mr. Cleveland left Washington and removed to New York to engage in the practise of law.

The defeat of 1888 was accepted by most of the Democratic leaders as finally disposing of Mr. Cleveland as a national factor in the Democratic party. But when 1892 rolled around and the Democratic party had to choose its standard bearer, the Democratic leaders were compelled by an overwhelming sentiment of the Democratic people to assent to his third nomination. The contest in the Chicago convention of that year was a desperate one. It was on that occasion that Bourke Cochran delivered his memorable speech against Cleveland. The nomination was bitterly fought by the delegation of his own State of New York. But on the first roll call Mr. Cleveland was nominated by a few votes more than the necessary two-thirds. In the election Mr. Cleveland received a popular plurality of 380,810 over Mr. Harrison.

Mr. Cleveland was the only President married in the White House, where, on June 2, 1886, Frances Folsom, the daughter of his old friend and partner at the Buffalo bar, became his wife. Ruth, the first of their children, was born October 3, 1891, at their home in New York City. She was named after Mrs. Cleveland's grandmother. During Mr. Cleveland's second term as President she was widely known throughout the country as "Baby Ruth." On January 7, 1904, she died at Princeton of heart failure, occasioned by a mild attack of diphtheria. Esther, the second daughter, was born September 9, 1893, and has the distinction of being the only child of a President born in the White House. Marion, the third daughter, was born at Buzzard's Bay, the Cleveland summer home, July 7, 1895. There was great rejoicing in the family when the three girls were followed by a son. He was born at Princeton, October 28, 1897. With the announcement that a boy had come to the house of Cleveland the students of Princeton dubbed him "Grover Cleveland, Jr.," at once. This name sticks to him, though he was christened Richard. Another boy was born at Buzzard's Bay, July 18, 1903. He was named Francis Grover for his mother.

PRETTY YOUNG WOMAN JAILED AT UNIONTOWN.

Arrested Yesterday for Passing Worthless Check—Has Several Millinery Bills About Town.

UNIONTOWN, June 24.—Fannie B. Salyards, a rather pretty young woman, was arrested here yesterday afternoon, charged with passing a worthless check upon Jones & Tyler, druggists. Three months ago she secured a place in the Uniontown hospital, and it was from the fact that she was connected with that institution that the druggists cashed the check.

In addition to having passed the worthless check, made payable at the Commercial National Bank at Wellsville, W. Va., she is also charged with having a number of unpaid millinery bills about town. Several young men who are acquinted with the young woman made an attempt to settle the case quietly, but District Attorney Davis W. Henderson would not allow it to be done, and she was committed to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. She will probably secure bail today.

Presidential Nominee Attends Yale Harvard Ball Game With Classmates.

AND 'TWAS A FAMOUS VICTORY

War Secretary Receives Enthusiastic Plaudits as He Marches With His Class Around the Field—Game Delayed Half an Hour.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—Secretary William H. Taft, "Big Bill," as he is termed, was the center of all the enthusiasm during the second day of his visit to Yale. Throngs of graduates, students and citizens followed the secretary's every movement. From the moment he appeared at Woodbridge hall, where he attended a meeting of the Yale corporation, until he left the headquarters of his class of '78 for the New Haven Country club to attend his class dinner, thousands of persons constantly were about him. They manifested their affectionate regard for him in every conceivable way. Classes of graduates serenaded him with fine bands, hundreds of friends extended personal greetings to him on the street and at the Yale-Harvard baseball game, and as the secretary marched with his class to and from Yale field their steps were flanked with people anxious to pay their respects.

At the Ledyard memorial dedication the secretary delivered an address in memory of the Yale man of '98 who laid down his life in the cause of his country. After the dedication of the flagstaff Secretary Taft proceeded to the Edwards house, where arrangements had been made to photograph the class of '78. After luncheon and meeting the class, headed by Mr. Taft and Judge Hollister of Cincinnati, formed for its march to Yale field to witness the Yale-Harvard baseball game. Secretary Taft disdained the use of an automobile and insisted, notwithstanding the excessive heat, upon marching with his classmates.

As the class of '78 swung through the entrance of Yale field headed by "Big Bill" the vast crowd of 14,000 rose to its feet and under the leadership of the yell and song directors began the thrilling cry with its added snapper of nine "Tafts." Secretary Taft never will forget the scenes which he witnessed during the next thirty minutes. The great throng remained standing as the parade of picturesquely garbed classes marched around the field. The parade delayed the game for half an hour.

The secretary has desired for weeks to see a ball game "for blood" and that desire was gratified. Both teams were on edge and the contest was replete with brilliant plays on both sides. "Wasn't it great," commented Mr. Taft on the game. It was one of the best I ever saw."

Yale won, 3 to 0.

Detroit, Mich., June 24. — United States Marshal Taylor has seized 5,495 cases of a well-known brand of Canadian whisky in the warehouse of Hiram Walker & Sons in this city. This is a renewal of the efforts of the agricultural department to exclude from the American markets this and other brands of Canadian whisky on the ground that they are not labeled in accordance with the new pure food and drug law.

Schmitz' New York Racket Store.

How Many Bricks Have You Sent Away?

That sounds like a funny question, addressed to every citizen of this town and community, but it's really a serious one.

Listen: There is now just completed a magnificent building of red brick exterior and concrete interior right in the business heart of one of the biggest of American cities. It occupies a whole block and calls itself in a large lettered sign "The Largest Monolithic Building In the World." It has many floors, with about a hundred acres of floor space. The entrances are of solid marble. The floors are beautifully tiled. Altogether it is a credit to the big city in which it stands. Oh, it's a Jim-Dandy!

Now, how many bricks have you sent to the city to go into this big building? Honest, how many?

Of the hundreds of thousands of bricks put into the walls of this building the city where it stands has contributed not a single red brick. Country people, the people of small towns and cities far away from the big metropolis, have sent in the bricks for the construction of this splendid edifice.

You may have sent in a few hods of bricks yourself without knowing it.

Listen: This magnificent structure, which ornaments a city you probably never will see yourself, is built of bricks bought with the dollars of people living in towns just like ours—towns that would like to have some new brick buildings themselves now and then. Every dollar contributed to the city building fund means a nice, hefty hod of bricks for this big, beautiful skyscraper, "largest in the world" of its kind. This building was put up, through the kind donations of their unknown country cousins, by a firm that ran a small store in that city a few years ago.

But this firm conceived the cute idea of having thousands of strangers contribute bricks to build its fine, large, new store.

And the building is a Mail Order Store. See?

COAL FIELDS OF UNITED STATES.

New Government Map Shows Clearly Location of Deposits.

UNIQUE IN MANY PARTICULARS.

Shows Locations and Extent of Fuel and Explains Their Character by Marginal Notes—Will Be of General Interest.

The need for conserving the mineral fuels of the country for the use of future generations has been emphasized many times during the last few years, not only in numerous magazine and newspaper articles, but in a number of reports emanating from the government bureaus especially charged with the investigation of the mineral resources of the national domain, the Geological Survey The statement that the coal supply of the country is far from being inexhaustible that the amount available is susceptible of measurement and that no very long look into the future is required to see the end of the present known deposits are graphically supported by a map that has just been published by the Geological Survey

A somewhat similar map was issued by the Survey in 1906, but the work of the geologists in the western coal fields in the last two years has added so much to the known extent of those fields that a new and revised edition has become necessary

The map now presented to the public is unique in several particulars It not only shows the location and extent of the coal deposits of the United States, but also by variation in color and depth of shading, the character of the coals in each of the great fields and the depths at which they occur beneath the surface For the first time an attempt has been made to represent the coal in the deep basins, or "synclines," as the geologists term them, of the Rocky Mountain States where there is every reason to suppose that coal exists, although it is so deeply covered with later sediments as to be accessible with great difficulty if at all Other new features of the map the the explanations printed in the side margins, describing the character and geologic age of the coals, and the accompanying tables, which give estimates of the amount of coal originally present in the deposits, the quantity that has been removed and the amount still available, subdivided into deposits easily reached and those accessible with difficulty

The data upon which these tables are based are confessedly incomplete, for future investigations of the geologists, especially in the Western and Southern fields, may further extend the limits of the known workable coal deposits, and the estimates at best but roughly approximate the true figures The extent and value of some of the beds in areas containing low grade coal or lignite are still matters of speculation This is particularly true of the lignite fields of the Gulf province (except those of Texas) the lignite areas of South Dakota, and the lignite and sub bituminous (black lignite) fields of the Fort Union region in Eastern Montana Information in regard to the extent, value and even the existence of the coal fields of the Pacific coast province are also very meager and the same may be said of the fields in Southern and Southeastern Utah, where there are probably many areas of coal bearing rocks though the coal may be of little commercial importance But these gaps in the record are believed not to detract greatly from the value of either map or tables, which representing the latest work of the geologists of the United States Geological Survey, cannot fail to arouse the interest of the rapidly increasing number of people who are vitally concerned in the conservation of the great mineral wealth of the country.

Like the other maps issued by the Survey, the coal map will be sold at cost of paper and printing, its price being 10 cents

PECULIAR COAL DUST PHENOMENA RELATED.

Engineer Tells of Igniting of Dust in English Mine Before Convention.

"At a recent meeting of the Midland Institute of Mining, Civil and Mechanical Engineers, held at Doncaster, England, J Beal read a paper describing the ignition of coal dust in the Boston seam at the Middleton colliery," says Mines and Minerals "The seam was a very dry one and dust accumulated very rapidly Early in September last a deputy had opened a safety lamp at the lamp station A train of full tubs drawn by a pony was passing and raised a considerable quantity of dust Just before the train reached the lamp station the deputy removed part of the burning snuff from the wick of the lamp, and it fell harmlessly to the floor As soon as the train had passed he knocked away the remaining portion of the snuff and as this fell to the floor there was an ignition of coal dust The flame rose to a height of about 2¼ feet, and spreading over a width of three feet followed the train with a peculiar rolling motion, apparently corresponding with the successive clouds of dust raised making a peculiar hissing sound The train stopped about 46 feet beyond the lamp station, and when the flame reached the last tub it ascended to the roof, returned along the upper portion of the roadway and finally extinguished itself within three feet or so of the point of ignition The color of the flame was described as being similar to that of a candle or oil lamp Mr Neal observed that mining engineers had thought that nothing short of an ignition of an explosion of gas, or gas and dust, could cause a coal dust explosion and that was his opinion until this incident occurred"

ACCIDENT MAKES COKE IN INDIANA.

Great Quantities Now Being Produced After Discovery Was Made. Fire Was Responsible.

Making coke in Indiana is no longer an experiment writes a correspondent of the Engineering and Mining Journal Coke is now being made from Indiana coal within two miles from Linton in Greene county in coke ovens of the latest and most approved bee-hive type constructed at a cost of $30 000 It seems strange that this is true after it has been taken for granted for all these years that Indiana coal would not make coke

The coke that is now being made in these ovens is now being shipped to Chicago where it is being used in great iron foundries and subjected to the most severe tests that coke is compelled to undergo These are the first coke ovens ever built in Indiana for the manufacture of coke in a commercial way and are now turning out coke of admittedly good quality

It is said that this experiment with Indiana coal for coke making was brought about as the result of an accident a little over a year ago The United Fourth Vein Coal Company, which owns several thousand acres of coal in Greene county has seven mines, one of which is called the Black Creek mine About a year ago a fire occurred in this particular property, burning for 18 hours While the fire raged the mine was closed up air tight in order to smother the flames When it was possible to enter the mine the owners found a peculiar situation By sealing the mine they had converted it into a huge coke oven and the walls of coal had been burned into coke

RELATIONS SEVERED

Uncle Sam Wipes Dust of Venezzuela Off His Feet

Washington June 21—The state department has been officially notified of the departure of Secretary Jacob Sleeper of the American legation at Caracas Venezuela aboard the gunboat Marietta leaving the United States without a diplomatic representative in that country A state of expectancy exists and is the result of inability of this country to secure any satisfaction from President Castro through Minister Russell

Caracas Venezuela June 21—All kinds of rumors are current and the withdrawal of the representatives of the United States is not quite understood by Venezuelans It is probable too that there will be an early rupture with Holland and there are reports that a revolution against the administration is being organized in Colombia As matters stand now the United States France and Colombia practically have no relations with Venezuela, Great Britain and Holland have serious questions pending with the government, Germany alone having no dispute

Before his withdrawal from the legation Mr Sleeper sent a note to the government asking for passports This note was answered in very considerate language and the American official was informed that passports were unnecessary inasmuch as he personally was persona grata and that diplomatic immunity would continue until he was on board the Marietta The communication to Mr Sleeper extended to him the cordial wishes of the administration for a happy voyage

Chapter X

JOHN ARMITAGE IS SHADOWED

ARMITAGE dined alone that evening and left the hotel at 9 o'clock for a walk. He unaffectedly enjoyed paved ground and the sights and ways of cities, and he walked aimlessly about the lighted thoroughfares of the capital with conscious pleasure in the movement and color of life He let his eyes follow the Washington monument's gray line starward, and he stopped to enjoy the high poised equestrian statue of Sherman to which the starry dusk gave something of legendary and old world charm

Coming out upon Pennsylvania avenue, he strolled past the White House and at the wide flung gates paused while a carriage swept by him at the driveway He saw within the grim face of Baron von Marhof and unconsciously lifted his hat, though the ambassador was deep in thought and did not see him Armitage struck the pavement smartly with his stick as he walked slowly on, pondering but he was conscious a moment later that some one was loitering persistently in his wake Armitage was at once on the alert with all his faculties sharpened. He turned and gradually slackened his pace, and the person behind him immediately did likewise

The sensation of being followed is at first annoying Then a pleasant zest creeps into it, and in Armitage's case the reaction was immediate He was even amused to reflect that the shadow had chosen for his exploit what is probably the most conspicuous and the best guarded spot in America. It was not yet 10 o'clock, but the streets were comparatively free of people He slackened his pace gradually and threw open his overcoat, for the night was warm, to give an impression of ease, and when he had reached the somber facade of the treasury building he paused and studied it in the glare of the electric lights as though he were a chance traveler taking a preliminary view of the sights of the capital A man still lingered behind him, drawing nearer now, at a moment when they had the sidewalk comparatively free to themselves. The fellow was short, but of soldierly erectness and even in his loitering pace lifted his feet with the quick precision of the drilled man. Armitage walked to the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Fifteenth street, then turned and retraced his steps slowly past the treasury building. The man who had been following faced about and walked slowly in the opposite direction, and Armitage, quickening his own pace, amused himself by dogging the fellow's steps closely for twenty yards, then passed him

When he had gained the advantage of a few feet Armitage stopped suddenly and spoke to the man in the casual tone he might have used in addressing a passing acquaintance

"My friend," he said, 'there are two policemen across the street. If you continue to follow me I shall call their attention to you."

"Pardon me"—

"You are watching me, and the thing won't do"

"Yes, I'm watching you, but"—

"But the thing won't do! If you are hired"—

"Nein! Nein! You do me a wrong, sir"

"Then if you are not hired you are your own master, and you serve yourself ill when you take the trouble to follow me Now I'm going to finish my walk, and I beg you to keep out of my way This is not a place where liberties may be infringed with impunity Good evening sir!"

Armitage wheeled about sharply, and as his face came into the full light of the street lamps the stranger stared at him intently

Armitage was fumbling in his pocket for a coin but this impertinence caused him to change his mind Two policemen were walking slowly toward them, and Armitage, annoyed by the whole incident, walked quickly away

He was not wholly at ease over the meeting The fact that Chauvenet had so promptly put a spy as well as the Servian assassin on his trail quickened his pulse with anger for an instant and then sobered him

He continued his walk and paused presently before an array of books in a shop window Then some one stopped at his side, and he looked up to find the same man he had accosted at the treasury building lifting his hat an American soldier's campaign hat The fellow was an extreme blond with a smooth shaved, weather beaten face blue eyes and light hair

"Pardon me You are mistaken I am not a spy But it is wonderful, it is quite wonderful"—

The man's face was alight with discovery, with an alert pleasure that awaited recognition

"My dear fellow you really become annoying" and Armitage again thrust his hand into his trousers pocket I should hate awfully to appeal to the police but you must not crowd me too far"

The man seemed moved by deep feeling, and his eyes were bright with excitement His hands clasped tightly the railing that protected the glass window of the bookshop As Armitage turned away impatiently the man ejaculated huskily, as though some over mastering influence wrung the words from him:

"Don't you know me? I am Oscar Don't you remember me and the great forest where I taught you to shoot and fish? You are"—

He bent toward Armitage with a fierce insistence, his eyes blazing in his eagerness to be understood

John Armitage turned again to the window, leaned lightly upon the iron railing and studied the title of a book attentively He was silently absorbed for a full minute in which the man who had followed him waited Taking his cue from Armitage's manner, he appeared to be deeply interested in the bookseller's display, but the excitement still glittered in his eyes

Armitage was thinking swiftly, and his thoughts covered a very wide range of time and place as he stood there Then he spoke very deliberately and coolly but with a certain peremptory sharpness

"Go ahead of me to the New American and wait in the office until I come"

The man's hand went to his hat

"None of that!'

Armitage arrested him with a gesture "My name is Armitage—John Armitage" he said "I advise you to remember it. Now go!"

The man hurried away, and Armitage slowly followed.

It occurred to him that the man might be of use and with this in mind he returned to the New American got his key from the office nodded to his acquaintance of the street and led the way to the elevator

"Don't you know me? I am Oscar"

Armitage put aside his coat and hat, locked the hall door, and then, when the two stood face to face in his little sitting room, he surveyed the man carefully

What do you want?" he demanded bluntly

He took a cigarette from a box on the table lighted it and then, with an air of finality, fixed his gaze upon the man who eyed him with a kind of stupefied wonder Then there flashed into the fellow's bronzed face something of dignity and resentment He stood perfectly erect, with his felt hat clasped in his hand His clothes were cheap but clean and his short coat was buttoned trimly about him

'I want nothing Mr Armitage" he replied humbly, speaking slowly and with a marked German accent

'Then you will be easily satisfied' said Armitage You said your name was'—

'Oscar—Oscar Breunig"

Armitage sat down and scrutinized the man again without relaxing his severity

You think you have seen me somewhere so you have followed me in the streets to make sure When did this idea first occur to you?'

I saw you at Fort Myer at the drill last Friday I have been looking for you since and saw you leave your horse at the hotel this afternoon You ride at Rock creek—yes '

"What do you do for a living Mr Breunig?" asked Armitage

'I was in the army but served out my time and was discharged a few months ago and came to Washington to see where they make the government—yes? I am going to South America Is it Peru—yes? There will be a revolution'

He paused and Armitage met his eyes. They were very blue and kind eyes that spoke of sincerity and fidelity, such eyes as a leader of forlorn hopes would like to know were behind him when he gave the order to charge Then a curious thing happened It may have been the contact of eye with eye that awoke question and response between them It may have been a need in one that touched a chord of helplessness in the other, but suddenly Armitage leaped to his feet and grasped the outstretched hands of the little soldier

'Oscar!" he said, and repeated very softly 'Oscar!'

The man was deeply moved and tears sprang into his eyes Armitage laughed holding him at arm's length

'None of that nonsense! Sit down!" He turned to the door opened it and peered into the hall locked the door again, then motioned the man to a chair

'So you deserted your mother country did you, and have borne arms for the glorious republic?"

"I served in the Philippines—yes"

"Rank titles emoluments, Oscar?"

"I was a sergeant and the surgeon could not find the bullet after Big Bend Luzon so they were sorry and gave me a certificate and $2 a month to my pay" said the man so succinctly and colorlessly that Armitage laughed

"You have done well Oscar, honor me by accepting a cigar"

The man took a cigar from the box which Armitage extended but would not light it He held it rather absentmindedly in his hand and continued to stare

You are not dead—Mr—Armitage, but your father'—

'My father is dead Oscar"

'He was a good man," said the soldier

"Yes he was a good man repeated Armitage gravely I am alive, and yet I am dead Oscar Do you grasp the idea? You were a good friend when we were lads together in the great forest If I should want you to help me now —

The man jumped to his feet and stood at attention

The man jumped to his feet and stood at attention so gravely that Armitage laughed and slapped his knee

You are well taught, Sergeant Oscar Sit down I am going to trust you My affairs just now are not without their trifling dangers '

'There are enemies—yes?" and Oscar nodded his head solemnly in acceptance of the situation

'I am going to trust you absolutely You have no confidants—you are not married?

'How should a man be married who is a soldier? I have no friends They are unprofitable declared Oscar solemnly

'I fear you are a pessimist Oscar but a pessimist who keeps his mouth shut is a good ally Now If you are not afraid of being shot or struck with a knife and if you are willing to obey my orders for a few weeks we may be able to do some business First remember that I am Mr Armitage You must learn that now and remember it for all time And if any one should ever suggest anything else'—

The man nodded his comprehension

That will be the time for Oscar to be dumb I understand Mr Armitage"

Armitage smiled The man presented so vigorous a picture of health his simple character was so transparently reflected in his eyes and face that he did not in the least question him

You are an intelligent person sergeant If you are equally discreet able to be deaf when troublesome questions are asked then I think we shall get on '

"You should remember — began Oscar

I remember nothing observed Armitage sharply and Oscar was quite humble again Armitage opened a trunk and took out an envelope from which he drew several papers and a small map which he unfolded and spread on the table He marked a spot with his lead pencil and passed the map to Oscar

Do you think you could find that place?

The man breathed hard over it for several minutes

Yes I would be easy ' And he nodded his head several times as he named the railroad stations nearest the point indicated by Armitage The place was in one of the mountainous counties of Virginia fifteen miles from an east and west railway line Armitage opened a duly recorded deed which conveyed to himself the title to 2,000 acres of land also a curiously complicated abstract of title showing the successive transfers of ownership from colonial days down through the years of Virginia's splendor to the dread time when battle shook the world The title had passed from the receiver of a defunct shooting club to Armitage who had been charmed by the description of the property as set forth in an advertisement and lured moreover by the amazingly small price at which the preserve was offered

It is a farm—yes?"

'It is a wilderness I fancy ' said Armitage 'I have never seen it I may never see it for that matter But you will find your way there going first to this town Lamar studying the country keeping your mouth shut and seeing what the improvements on the ground amount to There some sort of a bungalow there built by the shooting club Here's a description of the place on the strength of which I bought it You may take those papers along to judge the size of the swindle '

'Yes sir"

"And a couple of good horses plenty of commissary stores—plain military necessities you understand —and some bedding should be provided I want you to take full charge of this matter and get to work as quickly as possible It may be a trifle lonesome down there among the hills but if you serve me well you shall not regret it'

Yes, I am quite satisfied with the job, said Oscar

COKERS TRIM UNIONTOWN IN TWELVE INNING CONTEST.

Connellsville played rings around the once champion Onions yesterday at Uniontown yesterday and handed the far-famed stars from the way station a large juicy 5-3 lemon, although it required 12 innings. Limric took to the wild and woolly wilderness in the eleventh when things looked particularly dark for the leaders. Schettler relieved the southpaw and fared no better, one inning being all that was required to win the game. Booth Blanchard was in rare form for the Coke Heavers and had the Uniontown heavy hitters buffaloed all the way. Six widely scattered hits was the best they could do off the former Cincinnati man.

A decided change for the better was made by the locals in their line-up. Francis and Pfeiffer warmed the bench and Jacobson was moved to right field. Decker, the new man from New Castle, was in middle. "Sunny" Price, although injured, covered left field in National League style. Tiffany, the Cokers' star first sacker, was out of the game, and Sweeney covered that bag in a creditable manner. Lawton was back in his old position and caught several Onions wandering on their way to second.

Several times the Cokers had men on bases but could not hit them in. In the tenth with one down and three on the locals could not score and in the eleventh with two on and one down no run was forthcoming.

Uniontown took the lead early in the game nd looked like winners. Roberts, the first man up in the initial chapter, walked. Hilley received a rib roaster, advancing the middle fielder to second. Rudolph, after two attempts to bunt, smashed a liner to right, scoring Roberts.

Connellsville tallied in the first: Price was down when Montgomery hit one through Hilley. Ellam wilked nd Montgomery scored when "Sunny" Price singled to left. Uniontown garnered another in the third when with one down Roberts hit through Ellam. Ellam made a quick recovery, however, and cornered Nebinger between first and second, but a wild throw allowed the former Beaver Falls man to go clear to third. Hilley hit to Ellam and Nebinger scored on the throw to first. Uniontown again rung up one in the sixth. Yoedt banged out a single, was sacrificed to second and raced home when Price laced out a two-sacker.

Montgomery started the band wagon in the lucky seventh by connecting for a two-bagger. A triple by Ellam brought him across the pan and Birmingham sent a sacrifice fly to Rudolph, Ellam scoring.

Decker, the new man, started the winning rally in the twelfth with a clean single to left. Sweeney attempted to sacrifice, but Schettler threw wild to catch Decker at second. Lawton's timely single scored Decker and Blanchard forced Sweeney at third. Jacobson was hit and Montgomery hit a slow one to the shortstop, who failed to get Lawton at the plate. The score:

Baseball Babble.

One from the Onions.

As a result of yesterday's game, there will be a number of Connellsville fans go to the game at Uniontown this afternoon.

"Sunny" Price put up a nice game regardless of his injury. The whole outfield showed up well. Decker, the new man from New Castle, was in "Chip" Francis' place in middle, and showed that he could deliver the goods. Jacobson was shifted to right and the change did him good. Besides fielding everything that came his way in good shape he laced out a timely triple.

Montgomery put up a fine article of ball at the half way corner. It is directly due to Monty's little stick that the Cokers crawled out at the large end of the horn. He had three hits, including a two-sacker, two runs, a put out and four assists. His one error was not costly.

Gladfelder, the new outfielder from Washington, Pa., is expected in town today. He will probably take Jacobson's place in the outfield. He was a member of Milt Montgomery's Waynesburg team two years ago. Until the blowing up of the Interstate he had been playing in that league. He will doubtless prove a tower of strength to the team.

Decker, the new outfielder, has been putting up a fine article of ball with the New Castle O. & P. team. Owing to the poor showing that team was making in the O. & P. race about six of the players were released to make way for the new players from the Interstate League. Bobby Bails, the Scottdale boy, was released, but was recalled and is now regularly filling the position of third base.

Griffin, lately released by the home team, is still with New Castle, but for the last few weeks has been unable to play because of a broken finger. A new catcher from the Union League has been signed by the Nocks and Griffin will probably be released.

McGinty, the Connellsville cast-off of last year, is putting up a fine game for Clarksburg at short. Elmer Essler, also a former Connellsville player, is with the Lynn, Massachusetts, team, and is reported to be playing good ball.

The Washington Reporter, an admirer of "Sunny" Price, states that while in the Interstate League the outfielders would back up against the fence every time "Sunny" came to the bat.

Hilley, as well as being one of the headiest players in the league in fielding, is getting his bingle every day. The Uniontown management will make a mistake if they allow him to go back to first base.

Honest Abe (pity the misplaced title) made an exhibition of himself at the bleachers yesterday.

Honest Abe pitched one good game this year, no doubt his last. Too much swelled head will put any of them to the bad.

Dollars to doughnuts Honest Abe will be spared the ignominy of defeat by the indulgent management Friday if he is put on the slab. Once in a hole he will be yanked out and some poor sucker substituted. Abe surely has a pull.

The Morning Cry Baby says we will bust if we don't win.

Morning Cry Baby, please take notice: Compute the average attendance at Uniontown for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, then compare it with next Friday's attendance at Connellsville. If we don't skin you a mile then come back with vengence.

You've Seen Clothes That Hung Like an Empty Meal Sack.

That Suit Was Made to Sell Not to Wear. It Hung Without a Wrinkle When Its Owner Bought It.

A good hot iron in the hands of an expert tailor covers a multitude of clothing sins. It smoothes down a cheap interlining that has been only basted in. It causes the garment to present a perfect appearance and gives to it a faultless "hang" while it is being tried on, but linings of inferior quality, carelessly basted into the garment in place of careful stitching, is bound to become evident after a few days wear. The suit loses its shapeliness.

The curled, wrinkled linings are the peedominant features and the suit looks like a plate of scrambled eggs. It's just this sort of clothing that we DON'T sell. The lining in Alfred Benjamin Clothing is carefully cut and stitched in by hand. When we sell you a suit we guarantee the permancy of fit and faultess shape.

We are selling any suit in the store at $15 with a guarantee of money refunded if the suit does not give you as satisfactory service as any $30 tailor-made you ever wore.

Any $20, $22.50 or $25 Suit in the Store. Every single suit is of this Season's designing. Not a questionable style in the entire collection Now on Sale at $15. It is a Wonderful sale—wonderful in values—wonful in Volume and Wonderful in Its Nature.

It's the man who has been paying his tailor $30 for a suit of clothes, that we are particularly desirous of interesting in this sale. We stand ready to prove to him that these suits at their lowered price of $15 will compare most favorably with the $30 tailor-made he is wearing. Hand-me-down is a word that fittingly describes some clothing, but we haven't a suit of that kind in the entire lot. This is tailor-made clothing that is ready to wear. Choose any of them at $15. All regular $15, $16.50 and $17.50 clothes at $10.75. The sale will positively end Saturday, June 27th. So you had better buy your 4th of July outfit this week.
